How to Talk to AH's,... I mean Difficult People!

Conflict is inevitable – but the way safety professionals manage conflict could mean the difference between a worker going home safely and never seeing their family again. In my epic safety journey, I have come across some AH's,... difficult people. This session is not going to be an “us versus them” session or provision of a magic wand or prayer that will cure the situation,... this session is about hazard identification (ID the AH), risk assessment (how bad is this going to be), and the right control (plan to deal with others where it can be complicated, messy and unpredictable). Join me in how we can build our capabilities to help us have the best results possible with dealing that that AHs in our life. We will identify a couple different types I have come across in the safety world and provide some suggestions on how to survive and manage them through problem solving and communication.
