Hawai'i Chapter Newsletter – February 2022

Presidents Message

Happy New Year, ASSP Hawaii,

I hope everyone has a strong start this year. Our Chapter has a lot of exciting events planned for 2022. None are more significant than the 16th Biennial Safety Intelligence Institute Pacific Rim Safety and Health Conference on Oct 6 & 7, 2022. I challenge our members to increase their participation by attending our general membership meetings and volunteering to help lead events. ASSP Hawaii is an all-volunteer organization, and we need your help. Being an active member increases your leadership and technical skills while allowing you to meet Hawaii's top safety professionals. Grab a friend or co-worker and come out to our next event. We are always looking for motivated professionals who want to give back to the community. Our organization is only as good as the people who come out and participate.

I look forward to meeting you at one of our upcoming events.

Jeremy Nixon, CSP
President, ASSP Hawaii Chapter

Description:

Older workers' culture, values, and experience make them significant assets for employers. When organizations move beyond outdated and limiting beliefs about older workers and focus instead on their skills, knowledge, and experience, they can reap the benefits of a productive, age-diverse workforce. To keep older employees healthier and working longer, it is essential to understand their needs, the principles of ergonomics, and OSHA and other federal regulations and guidelines that keep workers safe from acute and cumulative injuries.

Presenter Bio:

Stephen Stout has worked with HEMIC for 18 years as Field Consultant Safety & Risk Management for all Hawaiian Islands.

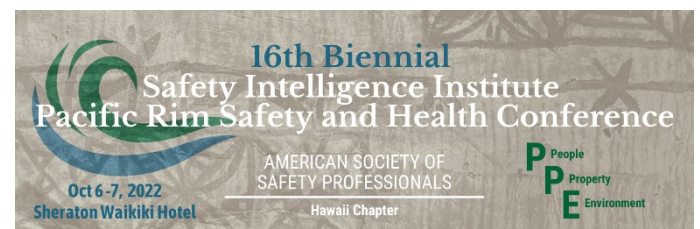

He is an authorized OSHA trainer for CFR 1910, and CFR 1926 courses as well as a SSPC C3 and C5 Certified Competent Person Supervisor Lead Abatement trainer.

Student Section Message

Hello chapter members,
I'm Janey Knutz, the Student Section President for the Hawaii Chapter of ASSP at Honolulu Community College. One of my goals is to have a team building exercise as we do volunteer work in our community. I'd like to invite the ASSP EC, as well as the Hawaii Chapter ASSP members to join us. Let's volunteer together on March 26 at the Paʻohonu Restoration Project. Located just south of Kaiona Beach Park, Pahonu Pond is an ancient Hawaiian stone enclosure that surrounds a turtle pond. Coming together as a safety community for the greater community will give us something we built together that will stand for years to come.
